Welcome to Mt. Fuji, a World Heritage site.

To ensure a wonderful summer memory of your visit,
please climb safely.

- Temperature and weather conditions on the mountain are prone to rapidly change. Bring both rain and cold weather gear, and avoid climbing in casual clothing.
- Follow the designated hiking routes. Straying from the paths and taking rests is extremely dangerous. Straying hikers can become lost or cause falling rocks.
- Do not continue hiking if you feel any symptoms of altitude sickness (such as headaches or nausea).
- If you are climbing with a group, be careful not to become separated.
- Only rest in areas that are safe. Do not rest where there is a “caution for falling rocks” warnings or in areas where the path is narrow.
- If the sky shows signs of lightning, take refuge in one of the mountain huts and wait until the storm passes before continuing your hike.
- On the descending route, there are no mountain huts after the Yoshida Trail/Subashiri Trail junction.
- Ensure that you carry adequate drinking water for the descent.
- Mt. Fuji Preservation Cooperation fee collection is carried out in front of the 5th Station General Management Center, and near the 6th Station Safety Guidance Center, and at the Fuji Hokuroku Parking Lot.
- Take your trash with you when you leave.
- Let's wear a helmet in case of falls, falling rocks and sudden eruptions.
- ★ Mt. Fuji is an active volcano. If the eruption alert level is raised while you are going up or down the mountain, start your descent at once. If by any chance an eruption occurs, immediately find refuge in places such as a nearby mountain hut or hiding place and act according to the instructions of officials.

Helmets can be borrowed at the 6th sta. Safety Guidance Center (limited numbers)
Deposit : ¥2,000 ▶ Missing or damaged helmets will forfeit the deposit.
